Angell Fine Arts, Ltd.

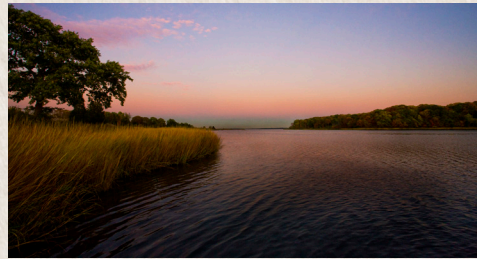

We captivate • We create • We care • We connect

As I become older and, I hope more wise, it's funny how I realize that I need to balance all of my interests and resources. Creativity seems to be coming from all areas in my life and somehow it is all working together. The challenge of creating a body of work for my 2010 October show at the Providence Art Club forced me to focus on my printmaking and photography as one conversation, each piece supporting the other. I now recognize that same conversation in many other types of my work, gardening and teaching for example.

As a printmaker, I am now asked to display my work in other retail operations such as The Donovan Gallery in Tiverton and Sprigs on Main in East Greenwich. As a teacher, I will be judging a photography show in Little Compton on May 24th and also act as a professional photography judge on the State and Regional levels. As a gardener, I will be helping to grow the gardening project at Rocky Hill School.

In addition, as a volunteer I am supporting the Adirondack Museum with professional expertise, artwork, and my love for the Adirondacks.

Last, as a professional photographer I am lucky to work with all of you to help tell your story whether it is through family portraits, supporting and expanding your business story, helping your favorite non-profit, or having my artwork adorn the walls of your home, office or summer home. Thank you all for helping me stay in balance!

Design

Our design services are expanding every day. We are currently working with two businesses to help design logos, letterhead, packaging, web, and video. We are helping the owners organize their businesses and coordinate their message to the public. It is surprising how much fun we are having in this area. Sarah is currently finishing up her school year at the University of Massachusetts and has one more year to complete. She is focusing on design and is bringing current design trends to the studio. I continue to work with commercial clients to illustrate their businesses through photography and now we have rich resources in the studio to help you with your needs.

With the advent of more powerful and user friendly software in high definition video and higher resolution in cameras, our work with video and integrating social media has expanded. Alex has been working with our new iMac computer and Final Cut software to edit videos and collaborate with Ruth on the video capabilities of our new cameras. He has been travelling the globe from Australia to Europe racing sailboats, bringing his multinational experiences to Angell Fine Arts and giving us a unique perspective. We are also constantly working with our social media presence to use facebook and twitter as tools to keep our customers informed and our products displayed.

Its spring, I think?! We have been working on the property and moving all kinds of plants around, creating new walkways and places to sit and relax. I even got a fountain for my birthday. All of these changes make great new areas in which to take portraits. During the months of May and June, the yard is spectacular, filled with blossoms of all sorts. Spring is also the time that I plan my summer excursions. This summer I will be traveling to the Adirondacks, Hyannis, Cuttyhunk, Martha's Vineyard, Block Island, and California. I am happy to meet any of you at your summer homes or on your boat to create wonderful photography and video sessions of your family.

The RI community, especially non-profit institutions, continues to face shortages in all types of resources. We feel that Angell's support can help many agencies by volunteering our time or our services. Our focus generally seems to be with children's health and education. The agencies that we have supported this year are Angel Planes, Rocky Hill School, Big Sisters of RI, Prout School, Our Lady of Mercy School, Community Prep School, Barbara Tufts School, the Tomorrow Fund, the Providence Community Libraries, and the Rhode Island Blood Center.

This year I have been asked to be the featured artist for the Rhode Island Blood Center's Passport Program. I am the ninth artist following: Cindy Kelly, Maxwell Mays, Richard Benjamin, Harley Bartlett, Domine Vescera Ragosta, Richard Grosvenor and Anthony Tomaselli. It is an honor to have been selected and I hope those that gave blood and are part of the program will enjoy the magnificent prints that Meridian Printing created.

I have very much enjoyed teaching at Rocky Hill School this year. My students won most of the state-wide competitions and I was so excited for them! The following students received either gold or silver medallions in the RI Scholastic Awards and placed in the top spots in the Hera Young Artists Show: Sarah D'Agostino, Lauren Gertz, Christina Leahey, Giles Van Gruisen, and Danny Waterman. I am so proud of these students and I am sure that we will be viewing more of their incredible work!
